Commander Heyerman Pleads a Want of Definite Specifications.

Indication that Technicalities Will Be Taken Advantage Of.

Kearsarge Court-Martial Decides to Proceed on Charges as Read.

The first business of the court martial appointed to try Commander Oscar F. Heyerman, late of the United States corvette Kearsarge, on a charge of neglirence in allowing the vessel to run on Roncador Reef Feb. 2, was the reading of a telegram from Secretary of the Navy Herbert in which the Secretary ordered the substitution of Commander Frank Wildes for Commander George F. F. Wilde to sit as a member of the court. This removed the snag which caused an adjournment yesterday without any testimony having been taken. Commander Heyerman was then asked by Judge-Advocate Kelley whether he desired to exercise his right to challenge any member of the court. This was a formality which was gone through with yesterday, but had to be repeated to-day because of the substitution of Commun-der Frank Wildes for Commander George F. F. Wilde as a member of the court.

The accused signified his satisfaction at the personnel of the court. Then fol-lowed the swearing of the members. First Commander Carpenter, as President of the court, swore Lieutenant- Cross. Commander Kelley as Judge-Advocate, after which all the members of the court grouped themselves around the President at the head of the long table. Nine gold-laced right arms stretched out and nine sea-browned hands grasped out and nine sea-browned hands grasped the bible held aloft by the President. The oath was administered with due solemnity by the Judge-Advocate. Then the charges against the Kearsarge's late Commander were read by Mr. Kelley. Commander Heyerman stood up facing his judges during the reading of the charges, and was asked whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty. His reply was an indication that the defense had decided upon a course which will allow him to take advantage of any technicalities which may arise during the trial.

As usual, when any point of particular interest is to be discussed, the court was cleared, and when the reporters were allowed to return President Carpenter ansounced that the court ruled that the specifications as read were to stand. The defense bowed its obedience to the court's ruling.

expected that both would be on hand to-day, however.

Three cadets, who were to be called as witnesses, were present, but the Judge-Advocate favored an adjournment until the principal witnesses arrived.

Accordingly an adjournment was ordered until 11.30 o'clock.

At 11.30 o'clock the court convened again, but as neither Admiral Stanton nor Lieut. Lyman had been heard from a recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

Eddie Hyland Joined the Navy and Was Court Martialed.

He Had Carried Copy from the Heyerman Court of Inquiry.

During recess at the trial by court martial of Commander Heyerman at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, to-day it became known that another court martial was held a few days ago in which the defendant was sixteen-year-old Eddle Hyland, a district messenger boy, who carried "The Evening World" reporters" copy during the session of the Court of inquiry into the accident to the Kearsarge. At that time it seems Eddle was seized with an uncontrollable desire to Wear shiny gold lace and a big sword.

After Smugglers.

Col. L. M. Montgomery, formerly Chief Special Agent of the Treasury Department at this port, but who has been appointed Special Agent in charge of all agents in Europe, with headquarters in Paris, took leave of his staff here at the Custom-House to-day.

He sails to-morrow morning on the Campania. Just before 12 o'clock all the special agents and inspectors assembled in Col. Montgomery's office, and Special Agent G. F. Cross, on behalf of his associates, presented the following testi-montal to Col. Montgomery. The testimonial was handsomely en grossed on parchment, and will be set in an appropriate frame. It read as fol-lows:

Col. L. M. Montgomery.

Special Agent in Charge Second District.

Port of New York.

Dear Sir: Permit us, as employees and official associates in the office of Special Agent at the Port of New York, to earnessly congratuate you on your promotion by the Hon. Secretary of the Treasury to the responsible and important postition of Special Agent aboad. While we fully appreciate the honor thus conferred upon you and wisk you every success in your new field of labor, it is with deep regret that we will say the final good-by-may, not good-by-may and the pleasure of performing our duties under your direction you have always shown a deep inierest in our individual work and treated us with uniform kindness and courtesy. Your sterling qualities, chivairic noture and warm friendship have so endeared you to us that the old office will indeed seem "like a house deserted" when you are gone.

so endeared you to us that the old office will indeed seem "like a house deserted" when you are gone.

We wish you a pleasant and safe voyage across the mighty waters, a hearty welcome on the shores you know so well, a successful career, with abundant health to enjoy and prosecute your work. We will, of course, hear from you often officially, but a line now and then in a friendly vein will be giadly welcomed and appreciated by your old associates.

Special Agent G. F. Cross has been appointed as Col. Montgomery's successor, and assumes the duties of the position to-day.

It leaked out this morning that Special Agent J. C. McCoy is to go to Parls on a special mission, and that mission is said to be the unearthing of a big gang of jewelry smugglers, whose existence has been revealed to the Special Agents here through the arrest of the two French people who were caucht smuggling on La Bretagne this week by the Special Agents, as told exclusively in "The Evening World."

Mr. McCoy, when asked about the matter, refused to say anything beyond manifesting displensure at knowing his trip was to be made public.

NOT CLERKS ENOUGH.

Reason Given for Delay in Paying Park Department Employees. The employees of the Park Department have not been paid their salaries for the week ending March 17. The men will probably not be paid before Monday. There are now 2,792 laborers on the rolls of the Department, about 2,200 of whom are engaged under the $1,000,000 appropriation. The pay roll for last week is $31,600, but the total pay roll for the previous seven weeks did not exceed $45,000, so that with last week's pay roll the total expended for laborers will be less than $100,000 of the $1,000,000 appropriated.

propriated.

The delay in paying off the men is due to the lack of sufficient clerks to meet the increased number of employees. Comptroller Fitch signed the warrants to-day, but they cannot reach the Paymaster's office before to-morrow.

Senator Owens has been careful not to mention the object of his bill, the inne mention the object of his bill, the innocent title of which is "An act to repeal chapter 680 of the Laws of 1893.

The fact that Senator Owens is from Brooklyn, and that he did not explain that chapter 680 had reference to New York City, and to so important a measure as that providing for the Elm street widening and extension, is considered as evidence that he was trying to conceal the nature of his bill, and not attract public attention. There is a suspicion in official circles here that "something is wrong," or the repealer would have been placed in charge of some of the members from New York City.

Only a small proportion of the interested property-owners are now opposed to the alteration of Elm street, and, it is not believed, they are back of the bill.

There are many lawyers who expect is not believed, they are back of the bill.

There are many lawyers who expect to make fat fees out of the awards for land. The suggestion is made that the bill may be a "strike" at them. The attorneys who have the largest number of these cases are Michael J. Mulqueen, son-in-law of Mayor Gilroy, who was instrumental in pushing the Elm Street law through, and Thomas R. Pitman, law partner of Police Justice Koch.

The Elm Street law, which it is sought to repeal, confers power on the city authorities to seize and condemn property for public improvements and pay for it afterwards. Six months after the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal the title to property on which there are buildings passes to the city. If there are no buildings the city can take possession at once. Under the old law there was five or six years delay in I tigation, and the city could not take the land until legal proceedings were ended.

The land-owners at first objected to being deprived of their property in a summary manner, and talked of testing the constitutionality of the law.
